

ENGLISH FLIERS, NOW OVER THE ATLANTIC, USING MONOPLANE OWNED BY PRINCESS PASSENGER

Hamilton and Minchin Hop Off for Ottawa, Canada, at 7.35 A. M. — Passenger is Member of Old British Family — Monoplane is Well Equipped GALWAY, Ireland, Aug. 31 (I.N.S.)—The plane St. Raphael, bound for Ottawa with two pilots and Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, passed over here early this afternoon.

UPAVON, WILTSHIRE, Eng., Aug. 31 (I.N.S.)—With the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim as a passenger, Captain Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchin of the Royal Air Force took off from here at 7.35 this morning in a new attempt to span the Atlantic Ocean by air.

Using the Fokker monoplane St. Raphael, owned by the Princess, the fliers headed for Ottawa, Canada.

The Princess Lowenstein, an Englishwoman, is 61 years old. She was born Lady Anne Savile. In 1897, she was married to H. S. H. Prince Ludwig Karl zu Loewenstein-Wertheim-Freudenberg, a member of the German nobility. She has been a widow since 1939.

A member of a British family that dates back to the time of Richard II., the Princess has long been prominent in society of England and the continent. Of late years, she became intensely interested in aviation. The International News Service announced last week that the Princess was contemplating this flight but it was derided by Hamilton at the time.

Hamilton and Minchin were "dark horses" in the trans-Atlantic derby. Until late last night, it was not known that they intended to leave this morning, and their announcement that they would brave the dangers of a trans-oceanic hop today came as a complete surprise.

The aviators and their female companion almost met with tragedy at the very outset. The heavy plane sped across the field for almost three-quarters of a mile before it rose into the air, and then narrowly missed a clump of trees as it cleared the field. A tremendous cheer went up from the large crowd which had assembled. The spectators gasped as the plane wobbled uncertainly over the turf. Ever gaining momentum but its wheels still hugging the ground, for a moment it was feared that the plane would not rise. Then, when it had taxied more than three-quarters of a mile, the nose of the plane tilted upward, the wheels went free from the ground, and a moment later the plane had disappeared into the clouds.

The plane was heavily loaded. Besides the regular complement of gasoline necessary for a trip of this length, the fuselage of the St. Raphael was fitted with a wicker armchair and an army cot for the use of the Princess during the arduous journey. The Princess Lowenstein, overcoming the protestations of relatives who objected to her making the flight, waited at her London home in Belgrave Square for word that the aviators were ready for the start. When notified that the time of the hop-off was approaching, she journeyed to Upton by motor.

In making the flight, the Princess emulated the example of Charles A. Levine. She owns the plane in which the flight is being made, and it was revealed today, is the backer of the entire project. The St. Raphael is equipped with a 510 horse-power Jupiter engine of nine cylinders. It carries 800 gallons of gasoline, and weighs six and a half tons fully loaded. Hamilton and Minchin hope to make the jump in record time. Their plane is capable of 120 miles an hour, and has a cruising speed of well over 100. A dramatic scene took place at the airfield before the start was made. The Roman Catholic archbishop of Cardiff held services beneath the yellow wings of the plane, while scores of officers of the royal air forces, comrades of Hamilton and Minchin, stood about with heads bowed. The fliers were in confident spirits before the start. The Princess, her eyes sparkling in anticipation of the venture, discussed her daring plans with International News Service.

"I am looking forward to this trip," she said. "I am confident of my pilot and my machine. I am proud to be the first woman passenger to attempt crossing the Atlantic Ocean. I am excited, of course, but I am not nervous. Could I be anything else? It is a great adventure." Winston Churchill, British chancellor of the exchequer and a friend of Princess Lowenstein, flew from London to the Upton aerodrome last night and inspected the plane. "I think she's a fine machine," he said after the examination. "I hope they succeed."

The Princess' stylish outfit was in sharp contrast to the rugged flying clothes of her companions. She wore a black toque hat and a loosely-fitting bright blue suede jacket, and her legs were encased in a pair of riding breeches with yellow boots topped with brown fur. The boots just failed to reach the bottom of her breeches, and two inches of sheer silk stockings were left exposed.

DR. APPEL GIVES RULES FOR KEEPING OF YOUTH

State Secretary of Health Says Health is Secret of Long Life

MANY SEEK YOUTH

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31 (I.N.S.)—"It is a wonderful age and an ageless one," says Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, in discussing the eternal human search for youth and the things that go with it.

Reviewing the efforts of women to keep young, Dr. Appel admits that the "artistic touch of the cosmetics and chemical arts" have added "grandmothers to look no older than mothers, and mothers no older than daughters."

Yet while this transformation has been going on ageing men have had but little to aid them. Dr. Appel says in remembering that they, too, "have been sighing for a scientific fountain of youth."

It is on this human desire that Dr. Appel hinges his weekly health talk, and the same time the remedy which all of his profession offer, namely health.

"Health," Dr. Appel asserts, "is the secret of long life and the means of obtaining the much desired triology, vim, vigor and vitality."

- And here are the ways, according to Dr. Appel, in which people hasten old age:
1. They eat too much and consequently become fat and lazy.
 2. They permit gasoline to take the place of legs.
 3. They sleep six hours instead of eight hours each night.
 4. They are careless concerning the elimination of body wastes.
 5. They are afraid to work their bodies into a sweat.
 6. They breathe impure air.
 7. They stay out of the sun.
 8. They drink too little water.
 9. They smoke too much or rely on drugs and other stimulants.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 31 (I.N.S.)—Unveiling and dedication of the memorial to General George Gordon Meade today was fixed by the Meade Memorial Commission for October 19 at 2.30 o'clock. A program for the dedication is now being worked out.

The memorial is located in Washington near the Grant memorial and is in one of the most conspicuous locations in the national capital.

The movement for a memorial in Washington to General Meade started in 1911, with an appropriation by the legislature of $20,000 for the work. Since that time those backing the plan have met with a succession of obstacles and delays.

Failure of Congress to provide a site after the Pennsylvania legislature had authorized the work was blamed for delay in the early days of the movement.

BENSALEM SCHOOLS ARE READY TO OPEN FOR '27-'28 TERM

Supervising Principal Faust Completes His Teaching Staff for Year

EXPECT BIG ENROLMENT

School Buildings Have Been Renovated and High School Painted

An exceptionally large enrollment is expected at the Bensalem Township public schools when the 1927-28 term opens on Wednesday, September 7th, for the nine-month period.

The opening date has been set for Wednesday of next week, giving all scholars ample time to return from holiday visits. Re-examination day for those in the many classes will be Tuesday, the 6th, and all individuals who failed in certain subjects last term will thus be given opportunity to make up units of credit needed. During the morning hours of Tuesday the subjects in which examinations will be given are: mathematics, history and social sciences. All other examinations will take place during the afternoon hours.

Those in charge of the Bensalem schools are anxious for all students to commence classes on the first day of the term, as the law regarding school attendance will be strictly enforced. Many fail to realize the importance of promptness at all sessions; and the board is showing its desire for as many as possible to attain attendance certificates by having the term open two days after Labor Day. Many other schools are being opened on September 6th.

The beginners who report on the morning of September 7th must be accompanied by birth and vaccination certificates. Only those children who will be six years of age on or before November 1st will be admitted this term.

It was stated today by Samuel K. Faust, supervising principal of the district, that all persons attending the township schools for the first time should be prepared to present their credentials from schools where they were formerly instructed. Certificates of successful vaccination and birth certificates should likewise accompany the other credentials.

Mr. Faust, of Hulmeville, who for several years has occupied the position of supervising principal, will again act in that capacity. He will handle economic civics with the Freshmen, and problems in American Democracy with the Senior Class, in the high school building at Cornwells Heights.

Other teachers in the high school building and the subjects which they will handle are: Miss Cecelia Snyder, Cornwells, sciences and mechanical drawing; C. Kenneth Roper, Enola, Pa., mathematics and history; Miss Margaretta L. Vincent, Philadelphia, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, who comes highly recommended by the Dean of the school of education and other professors at the University, Latin and French. Miss Helen E. Seltzer, of Reading, a graduate of Temple University, has been chosen to teach English and lead in certain activities of the school. Miss Seltzer is also well recommended by the authorities of the school of which she is a graduate. Physical education for girls of the high school will be under the supervision of Miss C. Esther Frederick, of Perkasie, one of the teachers in the departmental grades.

W. Robert Paynter, of Bethany, Pa., will be in charge of physical education of the boys in the high school, as well as courses in Junior business training for the Freshmen.

Miss Catherine L. Helfrich, whose home is in Shippensburg, has been selected to teach public school music and art in the departmental grades. Miss Helfrich has been very successful in this line of work in her normal school years.

Miss Dorothy Schmeck, who taught the Center School pupils last year, has been transferred to the fourth and fifth grade room at Cornwells Heights. Miss Irene Knappenberger will again be in charge of the second and third grade pupils in this building, and Miss Nan Hammond will be instructress of the first grade tots.

The same corps of teachers will be in charge of the Andalusia school as last term. Frederick C. Spitzer will teach scholars in the grammar room; Miss Rae Komenarski will have charge of the intermediate pupils; and Miss Margaret Pyle will be primary instructress.

At Edgington, Wallace Lukenbill, a graduate of the Kutztown State Normal School, will succeed Charles Paynter, in the grammar room. Miss Hazel Gray, a former teacher in Plumstead and Southampton townships, will take the place of Miss Helen Guy in the primary room.

Miss Dorothy I. Danforth will again return to the Flushing School, having in her charge the pupils from the first to eighth grades, inclusive. Miss Fannie M. Dunkle will again be in charge at the Hermitage School; while at the Centre School Miss Elizabeth B. Mc-

BOOSTING BRISTOL

The Young Men's Association is responsible for bringing to Bristol this year some of the world's finest talent in the canoe racing line. The events in which these experienced paddlers will participate will be in connection with the first regatta and river carnival.

The members of the clubs participating will be guests of the Y. M. A., here, on the third, fourth and fifth of September, and to the young water sports lovers of Bristol should credit be given for arranging such a splendid program as the one marked out.

The historic Delaware on two of these days will be the scene of many races. Here young men will vie for honors in quad doubles and singles, one man doubles and singles, two men on gunwales race, and all that will help make an interesting day.

This program will bring to Bristol aggregations from Philadelphia; Dundalk, Md.; Alexandria, Va.; New York; Washington, D. C.; Edgewater Park, N. J. Their impressions of our town should and will be of the best.

On Sunday the Y. M. A. guests will be shown about the town, taking in the many places of interest hereabouts.

Residents are looking forward with pleasure to the program; and also looking forward with pride, because of the part the cream of Bristol's young men is expected to take.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Advice is cheap and most liberally given, but good advice is rare, probably for the reason that so few have it to give and few recognize its worth when given. Though it has been said "the discreet take advice while the fool does his business," the discreet are wise enough to know who can give good advice and to listen when they give it.

Judge Elbert H. Gary was the world famous head of the United States Steel Corporation, an authority on finance, an economist of wide experience and vast knowledge, whose advice was often sought and seldom given, except to those in high position. For these reasons his testamentary observations on investments and other financial matters were the more avidly seized upon by the public. The layman can little afford to pass them heedlessly. In his will Judge Gary wrote:

"I earnestly request my wife and my children and descendants that they steadfastly decline to sign any bonds or obligations of any kind as surety for any other person or persons; that they refrain from anticipating their income in any respect; that they refuse to make any loans except on the basis of first-class, well-known securities, and that they invariably decline to invest in any untried or doubtful securities or property or enterprise or business."

Such sound advice wells from the deep and profound springs of experience. The words in which it is couched seem to betray their author as one who has made the mistakes against which he cautions his heirs. In spite of them he built up and preserved a huge estate. His only request of those to whom he passes on his wealth is that they preserve it for their own comfort and happiness.

"Great men can seldom take counsel," but there is no proverbial reason why common people cannot take it when it costs nothing.

Lots of so-called will power is won't power.

SYNOPSIS

Emmett Murtough of Killanmaul, Ireland, emigrates to America and is followed by Sheila Kildare, to whom he is betrothed, and her father. Sheila makes friends with the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer whom Emmett scorned. She begins to see through Murtough's boasting. Rory takes Sheila to Coney Island and for a trip in an automobile which inflames Murtough's jealousy. Rory is going away to camp to train for his coming fight with Campeau.

"This fight will tell the tale. Win or lose, I'll know whether I'll ever go into the ring again. I might win; I've got a good chance, but to win wouldn't be proof that I am good enough to get any farther. I'm not like most fighters. They stick to it hoping they can get by with luck. I don't. I know that I've gone back a lot; I fought too many fights too early, before I was fully developed. I'd like to win because the money would give me a chance at something else."

"Wouldn't it be splendid if you could get into business, like your brother Tim?"

"I've thought of that and if I win this purse I'm going to ask Tim about it. If I don't win I'll have to get a job in something that has a future in it. Lots of ex-fighters stick around the game and become trainers or managers of other fighters, but I wouldn't want to do that. When I'm through I'm through for good."

"I shouldn't think it would be as good as something steady and sure," Sheila said.

"You're right, and besides I'm beginning to want a home of my own and a wife and children. After all that's the best thing that life can give anybody."

"I love children," exclaimed Sheila.

"So do I."

"I saw that the way you acted with Tim's little ones."

"They're a fine pair," Rory said enthusiastically. "Tim's a lucky man with his family."

Each avoided personal conversation, but when they reached home and Sheila said good night Rory took her hand.

"I'll be away two months and I won't get a chance to see you again unless you and your father will visit the camp some Sunday."

"We will," promised Sheila as she ran up the stairs.

Old Tom Kildare had news for her. Emmett Murtough had decided to quit his job on the morning. He was going into business with one of the members of the West Side Club. There was lots of money to be made in it. Some kind of trucking work it was and Emmett was to learn to drive a truck. He would be a big man soon, Old Tom declared.

But Murtough had not told all the truth about the trucking business. True he would learn to drive a truck, but for the present he would be a guard, armed and ready to shoot to kill. If need be, because the loads in the covered vans he would ride were liquor. Emmett had drifted into a gang of bootleggers headed by Manuel Cocker. Cocker's crew had long been the bane of the local prohibition agents, but with graft and political pull he had managed to overcome his business practically unmolested. He had assured Murtough that there was no danger but that the men on the truck had to be prepared for any emergency. This Murtough had not told Kildare.

Sheila made little comment. She was filled with thoughts of the glorious night she had spent and Emmett's venture did not arouse much interest. She only asked her father if the work would be steady.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gamble have returned from a three weeks' tour of the New England central and southern states.

Miss Emma T. Walling is spending a couple of weeks with relatives in New Jersey.

The Mutual Building and Loan Association, of Langhorne, paid off its first series of stock of 292 shares on Monday, August 22, 1927, making $1.00 paid in monthly for 11 years and 4 months, or $136.00 paid in to mature at $200.00. This association organized in March, 1916, and opened its first series of stock April 1st of the same year, and is to be congratulated for its great success.

WOMEN WITH BOBBED HAIR VERY EASILY GET RID OF GRAY HAIRS

With Color Glands Normal
Nature Keeps Hair Natural Shade

SENSIBLE ADVICE TO WOMEN TURNING GRAY

Everyone knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray, or off-colored locks, so why use dyes or tints?

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "If with certain medicines I can stimulate my patient's other organs, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up these inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes? Surely the hair will then again resume its original shade and color regardless of the user's age or previous condition of their hair."

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY
He didn't want an artificial dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp. Just like a tonic that builds up a person's strength after some long wasting illness, he wanted a tonic that would revive and stimulate the inactive, weak, or dormant hair roots and color glands. Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the scalp food and tonic he finally perfected. For several years hair dressers and specialists have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one need only apply it to some small spot for a week or two and watch results.

Men and women in all walks of life have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. Evidently one need never become gray if they keep the scalp and roots toned up with an occasional massage with Lea's Hair Tonic.

If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back, they should purchase a bottle at the drug store or pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send with name and address plainly written to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. $1 bottles parcel post anywhere with full directions.

No one need have gray or off-colored hair any more.—(Adv.)

POLLYANNA COLYUM

Smile and the world smiles with you. Frown and the world laughs at you.

The train had halted at a station surrounded by virgin forest in one of the few localities in the South where life is still primitive and the natives cling to the customs of their fathers. A passenger noticed a party of men on horseback who, from their general appearance, looked very much like a sheriff's posse. "Who are they after?" he asked a man who was lounging on the platform. "Well, stranger," drawled the native, "you see like Jones' eldest boy is fo'teen today, and they aim to run him down and put shoes on him."

The United States is no infant nation, but the weaning from the bottle process is nevertheless somewhat tedious.

"You're so opposed to surprises," a wife told her husband, "and knowing how you feel about it, I ordered that dress. That's why I'm telling you before it arrives."

The United States, a Washington dispatch proclaims, is back on good terms with Mexico. This will come as a shock to a lot of us who didn't know we were mad at them.

Grocer Slow: "How is it that I never see you in my store any more?" Customer: "Maybe it's because I ain't there!"

Push: "Say, what makes you so darn talkative?"

Pull: "Well, my father was an Irishman, and my mother was a woman."

Before they were married he whispered to her: "Were I drowning in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean—going down for the third time—you would be the last person I'd think of." It made her feel happy. After being married several years he made the same speech. It didn't seem to have the same meaning then. Besides, she didn't like the way he said it. So she hit him with a plate.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

By M. F. Dacey

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

DENVER, Aug. 31.—For twenty-one years the life of a child, not yet born, will be regulated by the decree of a Denver court.

This extraordinary decision was made in connection with the granting of an interlocutory decree of divorce to Mrs. Charles Cusack, daughter of a Denver coal millionaire. Provision for the care not only of a seven year old son, but also for that of an unborn child was made.

The baby will come into the world to find its future existence marked out for it by law, regardless of its sex. It will be under the care of its mother for less than the first year of its life and then the father will take charge. Thereafter the baby, as well as the older brother will be alternately in the care of father and mother for periods of six months.

The children will never be permitted to leave the state except with the permission of both parents. This double permission will also be required in choosing a school for them.

"This agreement is reasonable, fair and just in every respect in each and every one of its terms and is hereby adopted as the order of the court," wrote the Judge in making the decision.

The father will be required to pay $100 a month to the mother for the care of the children.

No court decision was made in case that the baby should turn out to be twins.

National controversy which was hot in 1921 when social workers of this city suggested that there be no more children in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Cossidenti, who were so poverty-stricken that they were unable to give the five which they already had, proper care, was recalled here recently by the birth of a seventh baby—to the Cossidentis.

After social workers had found that the family were living under the poorest conditions and that they already had five children to care for, they recommended that an operation be performed on Mrs. Gertrude Cossidenti to prevent the birth of any more children. That was November, 1921.

"If I want children, I am going to have them and it is nobody's business," Mrs. Cossidenti replied.

A sixth child was born in 1923 and the birth of a seventh baby in August, 1927, is the second answer the Cossidentis have made to the authorities that sterilization be resorted to.

Does God conduct a great general hospital, psycho-pathic ward and all?

He does, according to Dr. Ernest G. Crabill, evangelist, who spoke before the summer conference of the Moody Bible Institute here, recently, only we human beings call it hell. The place is really a hospital for incurable sinners, Crabill explained.

"When the sinner defies the grace of God and finishes his course, there is nothing left but the incurable ward and God calls it hell," Crabill assured his audience.

On the existence of a real and literal hell, spouting flames, pitchfork wielding demon included, rests the truth of the whole Christian religion, the evangelist claims. "If there is no hell," he declared, "the Bible is a fraud. Jesus was mistaken and we are false prophets."

It is possible that the name of Charles Lindbergh, America's air hero, carries with it some formula for good luck. At least one Hinsdale prospect, or who has recently named two new claims near Lake City after the famous birdman, hopes that it does.

The claims, which have been christened "The Lindbergh" and "The Spirit of St. Louis," both hold promise of yielding a high grade ore, it has been reported here.

Bensalem Schools Ready To Open For '27-'28 Term

Lees, of Morrisville, a graduate of Trenton Normal School, will fill the vacancy left by Miss Schmeck.

Returning to the primary room at the Penn Valley School will be Miss Dorothy J. Reed; and John M. Sollenberger will succeed Jason White in the grammar room classes.

All those who taught at the Trevoise building last year will again have charge of grades there this term.

These will be Guye W. Miller, Miss Virginia M. Neely, and Miss M. Arabella Ehrlen, who will teach in the grammar, intermediate and primary rooms, respectively.

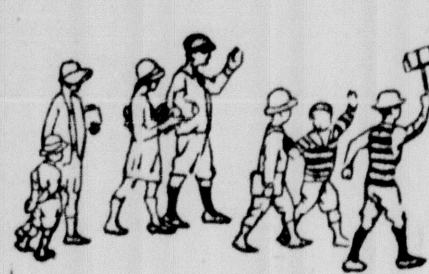

The buildings throughout the township have all been thoroughly cleaned, and at the high school coats of paint have been applied to both the interior and exterior of the building. The grade school at Cornwells Heights has likewise been painted inside and out.

The bus schedule this year will be the same as last year. These bus routes have been established for the benefit of the pupils who must be transported, and only for such persons.

—Miss Mary Lynn has returned to her home on Radcliffe street after spending two weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Lawrence Callahan, of Philadelphia.

—Mrs. Elwood Jackson, of Wood street, and Mrs. Marian Smith, of New Buckley street, enjoyed a vacation at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.

—Miss Katharine Sills, of Mulberry street, and Miss Katharine Oliver, of Bath street, spent Sunday in West Chester, Pa., with friends.

The SCHOOL BELL Rings

—and hundreds of children will be flocking back to their classes filled with the Autumn zest and spirit. But they must be clad, shod, fed, supplied, and transported. This is an especially propitious time to make a fresh start in these particulars, and nowhere will you be able to spend your money to better advantage than with the reputable merchants represented on this page.

Shapely Shoes for Smart School-Kids

Summer is over. Sandals and sports shoes must be discarded, and high shoes and oxfords bought for school wear. It is important with us that children with their still soft and malleable bones should have shoes that fit perfectly, leaving plenty of room for every toe, while yet conforming closely to the shape of the foot.

School Supplies at Moderate Prices

You can't expect a school-child to acquire knowledge unless he is properly equipped. Books, paper, pencils, fountain pens, school-bags, rulers—everything to put in or on the desk.

Don't let your boy or girl be a borrower; supply the youngster thoroughly. Part of a good workman's efficiency is his good tools—and we have them.
